Further explanation

The Responsible Entity generally aims to offer Class D unitholders Interim Withdrawal Offers on a monthly basis. The amount of Class D units made available for each Interim Withdrawal Offer will be determined by the Responsible Entity at each Interval and will be notified to investors (Interim Withdrawal Offer Cap). The Responsible Entity currently aims to make an Interim Withdrawal Offer in respect of at least 1.0% of all Class D units then on issue each month. However the Responsible Entity may offer an amount less than this; may determine not to make any offer; or may cancel an existing Interim Withdrawal Offer at its sole discretion.

If the Responsible Entity receives withdrawal requests which, in total, exceed the Interim Withdrawal Offer Cap, payments to all investors who have submitted withdrawal requests will be reduced on a pro-rata basis. Unfulfilled withdrawal requests made under an Interim Withdrawal Offer will not be carried forward.

The Responsible Entity aims to process the Interim Withdrawal Offer payments within 10 Business Days after the applicable Specified Withdrawal Date, but may take up to 12 months to do so.

Interim Withdrawal Offers will not be offered if a Liquidity Event has commenced and there are outstanding unfulfilled withdrawal requests. Furthermore, if a Liquidity Event were to commence, any outstanding withdrawal requests relating to an Interim Withdrawal Offer will be cancelled.

A Liquidity Event provides all Class D unitholders an opportunity to submit a withdrawal request which must be satisfied within 12 months, or longer if the Responsible Entity is unable to realise sufficient assets due to circumstances beyond its control. A Liquidity Event must be held if three years have passed since the later of either 1 July 2025, the last Liquidity Event, or the final business day of the last Interval where all withdrawal requests were paid in full. The Responsible Entity may also declare a Liquidity Event at any time at its sole discretion.

Please refer to the PDS for a full explanation of the Fund's liquidity terms.
